EXPATRIATE EMPLOYEES IN THAILAND TAX & LEGAL PLANNING, UPDATES 2009

Bullet Points

- ⇒ Update tax measures to stimulate Thailand's economy: Issues an expatriate should know!
- ⇒ Update new legal issues for expatriates working in Thailand eg., Labor Law, IEAT Law, Alien Business Law
- ⇒ Short term assignments of foreign staff and tax exemption in Thailand: How does it work?
- ⇒ Taxation of cross border employment: how to optimize taxes regionally?
- ⇒ Update the latest case study regarding expatriate's remuneration in Thailand
- ⇒ Understand an employee tax treatment for outbound investment from Thailand
- ⇒ Practical experiences with the tax authorities on remuneration of expatriates
- ⇒ Techniques to reduce personal income tax burden by using the ROH
- ⇒ How can use Thai double taxation agreement's network to reduce tax liability on international employment?
- ⇒ Shares, stock option, fringe benefits: When it will be exempted from tax?

One of the factors that have the highest impact on the total cost of the expatriate employee working in Thailand is the treatment of his remuneration in the countries where the assignments are carried out. This is of course a matter that concerns both the company and the expatriate employees. Many issues must be considered for the taxation of expatriate remuneration. For example, how to apply DTA benefits for short term assignments? Which benefits could be tax exempt under the tax law? Etc.

In this session, individual investors and expatriate employees will find tax opportunities and also the latest legal issues related to expatriate working in Thailand will be examined as well. The part of the new labor law that will have an impact on an expatriate working in Thailand will be considered. What are the benefits for expatriates who work under the Industrial Estate Authority of Thailand? The last alien business law may have some impact for expatriates working in Thailand as well. The speakers will update the trend of the upcoming foreign business law in the future.

Therefore, this useful seminar on update tax & legal planning for expatriate in Thailand is an in-depth examination of common and new tax planning and techniques in view of Thai revenue law, Thailand's Double Taxation Agreements including the legal issues related to expatriates in Thailand. The most authoritative experts and consultants are gathered for this important topic for international enterprise and investors.
